Statement of the Computing Research Association on
Combating Sexual Harassment in Science Act of 2018

As an organization representing more than 200 higher-ed and industrial institutions of computing research nationwide and firmly opposed to sexual harassment, we are pleased to support the Combating Sexual Harassment in Science Act of 2018 as part of an effort to end it. This legislation takes important steps towards creating a research environment intolerant of sexual harassment and supportive of the targets of it. We thank Representative Johnson for highlighting this issue and we look forward to working with her and her colleagues on the committee, as well as our colleagues in the funding agencies and the science community to make real progress towards this goal.
